

The Kingdom

Written by Tracy Howe and Aaron Strumpel, registered with ccli

There is still reason to sing
 There is still hope left to find
 In the cracks of war and famine
 He can still multiply the bread

There is still reason to sing
 There is still hope left to find
 He loves the prostitutes, He loves the orphans
 He loves children, in homes or without

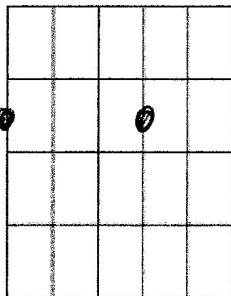

The Kingdom is and will be
 Redemption for your sorrow
 The Kingdom is and will be healing for your hurt
 The Kingdom is a will be peace for your family
 So let us sing, let us sing

V2

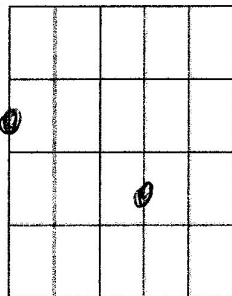

There is still reason to sing
 There is still hope left to find
 He is stronger than AIDS and bigger than war
 And He loves the poor
